COUNTY: Sevier

7.5' QUADRANGLE: Wear Cove

PHYSIOGRAPHIC PROVINCE: Unaka Mts.

ACREAGE: 237

YEAR DESIGNATED: 1974

DESCRIPTION: Roundtop Mountain is a 237-acre natural area located in the southwest corner of Sevier County west of Wears Cove Gap and east-northeast of Townsend. It forms a section of the northwest boundary of the Great Smoky Mountain National Park (GSMNP). When it was originally acquired, Roundtop Mountain was contiguous with approximately one mile of GSMNP boundary. It was acquired by the State in 1975 to protect this area of the Unaka Mountain range as a state natural area. At the time of its acquisition, and even today, this area remains highly susceptible to development, particularly from summer homes and vacation rentals. While the State initially planned to manage this area, it was soon determined that Roundtop Mountain could best be managed by the National Park Service as a part of the GSMNP.

The natural area occurs in the Unaka Mountains between 1,800 and 3,000 feet in elevation. This is one of the least visited areas in the Smokies and is very peaceful. While there is no trail access into the 237 acres that were designated, hikers can climb through a dry oak-pine forest on a south-facing slope following the Roundtop trail. Common plant species in the understory include mountain laurel, dogwood and American holly. In the spring, flaming azalea provides much seasonal color. Table mountain pine and pitch pine are dominant trees found along the ridge tops. There are elements of mixed mesophytic forest found in the moist and protected coves.
